

Anoo the Alien and Jack the Deer

There was once an Alien called Anoo who lived on a beach with his mum and dad.

Every day they played together. They played all sorts of games: board games, dancing games and dressing up.

But one day, they opened their dressing up box and the dressing up clothes were gone. What was inside the chest? A deer!

The deer was called Jack and he was a happy deer. He climbed out of the dressing up box and invited Anoo to climb onto his back. He seemed friendly, so Anoo climbed on and off they rode down the beach.

Trotting along the sand, they found a rockpool, and swimming around inside it was a penguin.

"Would you like to come and swim with me?" The penguin asked Anoo and Jack.

"Yes!" they said, and they jumped in with a splash.

Under the water was a tunnel. They swam down the tunnel, wondering where it would take them.

When they came out the other end, they were in a forest!

They were just starting to dry off when they heard a strange noise...

"Buzz! Buzz! Buzz!"

It was a Bee-Wolf! And it was coming towards them!

“Oh no!” They cried. “What shall we do?”

Luckily, Anoo had a bottle of poison. He hid it under some leaves and crept away to hide in the trees with Jack.

When the Bee-Wolf stood on the bottle, the poison spilled out and the Bee-Wolf keeled over.

“THUD!”

“Phew!” Said Anoo. “I think we better go home now.”

So, they swam back up the tunnel, out of the rock pool, and rode back along the beach to Anoo’s house. Home at last.

The End.
